

WESTERLY

The work of the Western Sanitary corps will be exhibited publicly Friday evening at the armory where all branches of the work will be demonstrated. Several business men will be on hand to ask questions regarding the work of the corps, so as to give the public a chance to see how much good is being done by the organization right here in Westerly. The work shows what can be done in case of accident, suffocation and calamities, and care of the wounded and stretcher work. The corps meets every Friday evening for practice, but this week Friday evening will be for the public. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock.

The Salvation Army is to have a drive here, and Col. W. A. McIntyre of Boston will be here at the Central theatre Sunday evening and address a public meeting. He will be assisted by Brigadier Crawford of divisional headquarters. Colonel McIntyre is second in command to Evangeline Booth in the national organization and commanding officer for the Salvation Army of New England. The drive will begin Sunday, will last a week and the quota for the town of Westerly has been placed at $1,500. All the mercantile and manufacturing establishments will be visited by local workers and leaders of the Salvation Army will make a house-to-house canvass. Pictures will be shown on the screen of the work in the corps and another film, Tuesday, will show the work in the Hope Valley, Bradford, Hopkinton, Ashaway and other nearby villages.

POETRY

THE STAR IN THE WEST.
The world has lost its old content,
With girled loins and nervous hands
The earth on her sharp shoulders
Flung over plains and tablelands
Of this wide-wat'ered continent.

Who calls the poor in spirit blest?
The rich in spirit with their own
Bliss is the war's shrill bugles blown
Look to the rippling banner thrown
Outstreaming in the west!

Who says the meek inherit here?
The earth theirs whose hands are strong
Work for the night comes; art is long
Onward the stern, stern faces throng,
Quick-eyed, intent, sincere.

Our life has lost its ancient rest
The pale blue flower of peace that grows
By cottage wall and garden close
Bury in the east, ah, where the west
Th' star that leads us west!
—Arthur Colton, in Boston Transcript.

SERENE DISCONTENT.
Serene content to me is not serene;
I brook no measure for my boundless soul.
Limits are low and averages mean;
No virtues suits one who pursues a whole.

Failure to grasp my visions are they
Delights more than mere mere no visions
A god or heaven unknown or unattained
Contents me better than mere dull content.

Nirvana's endless peace was meant for
Drones
Unending effort is unending joy
Atoms at rest are dead like stocks and stones
I want no lullaby, but always Troy.

Yet dear are all the daily tasks which fill
With irrevocable toil my frustrated hours
I love this earth, if heaven's above me
I choose a heaven which will tax my powers
—Frederic Almy, in New York Herald.

HUMOR OF THE DAY
Lady: "I want to see some good pictures. Do you carry them?"
Clerk: "Ma'am, you flatter me."
—Life.

"Two of my pupils are in love. Two sons' with but a single sister."
"In that case, professor, I think you should let them recite as a duet."
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"What would you call a genius?"
"Well, I should call a man who can make a mountain out of a molehill and then sell it for gravel."
—Boston Transcript.

"I had to cut the salary of the chorus."
"Ah, the girls kicked up a row."
"No. Consequently the performance is very flat."
—Louis Courier-Journal.

"A girl should not wear her heart on her sleeve."
"What is the stylish way this season?"
—Examiner.

"My family is shattered all over the earth."
"My son, aren't those automobiles terrible?"
—Life.

"Stay at home with your cold," says a physician. "But, doctor, it is such a terribly disagreeable company."
—Boston Transcript.

Blink: "I'll pay you when my shoes wear out."
Collector: "What do you mean by that?"
Blink: "By that I mean: I'll be on my feet again."
—Wayide Tales.

"I yearn for novelty in the day's news."
"Novelty."
"Yes. I want to read about a 'Tollie' beauty who married a millionaire's son and lived happily ever after."
—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"He claims married life reminds him of his army days."
"How does he figure that out?"
"There's many a scrap on an empty stomach."
—New York Sun.

She: "Before we were married you used to call me the light of your life."
He: "So I did, but your father had to pay the gas bills then."
—Exchange.

"You know all the capitals?"
"Yes. That is, of all the states."
"Well, what is the capital of the state of matrimony?"
"That's easy—money."
—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Did you ever notice that—?"
"Go on."
"That as soon as a girl finds out there is no Santa Claus she begins to believe in love."
—Wayide Tales.

"I don't enjoy grand opera," said Mr. Cumrox, "except when mother and the girls are along."
"You like companionship?"
"Not exactly that. But I get most of the evening's amusement out of seeing them obliged to sit still and do all the listening."
—Washington Star.
